Points

With this Loyalty program, you will let your customers collect points depending on the amount of money they can later substitute for products. Only you decide whether the price of a particular product will be expressed in points or you will assign a point to the monetary value, as our module provides for both options and their combination. Although common, this is a proven way for encouraging consumers and increasing turnover.